

Lord Vetinari liked words. He liked them because they were precise tools, capable of doing delicate work in the hands of someone who understood them. Most people used words the way they used blunt instruments, but the Patrician preferred a scalpel.